The Power of Validation -- What Does it Mean to You?

Validation is an act of truth that can be given and/or received. In present time, it is awareness and acknowledgement of true self, allowing us to see that in others. Validation of self and others comes from within.

In this class, you will learn to validate yourself and others. In doing so, you will realize a resulting sense of empowerment.

All About Havingness and Happiness

In this class we will be looking at your havingness, what is it you can and can't have. You may be able to have things you don't really want, and not have things you do want, or some combination. Maybe you don't understand what your havingness is at all.

Then there's the connection between your havingness and your happiness. What is that connection? How does it work? Those are the concepts we will be looking at, so that you can understand what is and is not happening in your own life, and get a better grasp on your own havingness and happiness.

From Ideas to Physical Reality

In this workshop we will look at how you bring your ideas into physical form and when you don't. With patience, perseverance, procrastination, or doubt? How do you relate emotionally to the creative process from the original idea to the outcome? We will explore these issues to simplify your process.

Unconditional Seniority

Seniority is not a trivial thing but it is a great goal to work for. There are those who deliberately upset people around them in order to stay in control. What if you were not "upset-able"?

We will practice staying senior with those people and situations that light you up most and develop new strategies for unconditional seniority so that you can stay inspired and connected to your "highest gold" no matter what.
